»A Global Ethic now!«

The themes

The major themes can be called up directly by clicking the grey buttons at the top of the page.

The chapters of the themes

When you move the mouse over one of the grey buttons, a red flip-menu opens up. There you find a list of all of the chapters under the corresponding theme.

The chapters can be called up either via the flip-menu or via the theme's start-page. Each chapter consists of at least one sequence.

Start-page of the theme: »Global Ethic and Politics«

The learning sequences

You can call up a unit within a learning sequence by clicking the orange taskbar showing either START or the title of the corresponding sequence.

Learning sequence: START

Three learning sequences

First screen (step) of a learning sequence

The grey field on the left of the frame is designed to show where you are within a given sequence.

Thus, it displays a table of contents for the current learning sequence, indicating those units, which have already been viewed. The table of contents thus grows step by step as one moves forward from one screen to the next.

When, in this column, you see the list of screens that you have already viewed, you can go back at any time to an earlier screen simply by clicking the corresponding entry in the list.

Alternatively, you can use your browser's backwards-arrow to go back step by step.

The grey field on the right side of the display offers supplementary information sources ("extras") which you can call up to deepen your understanding of the topic in question:

-  Further reading-matter on the topic,
-  Information in the form of pop-ups,
-  Videos (see also below),
-  Detailed information in pdf-format (can be downloaded and printed),

Links to other Internet resources relevant to the theme of the screen,

Information about photos.

First screen of a learning sequence. This sequence has six screens.

At the bottom of each frame there is a bar composed of red and white stripes, one stripe for each frame.

When you open a learning unit, the first frame appears in red, the remainder are shown as white.

When you open the next frame, the corresponding stripe in the bar turns red. Thus:

- The number of frames yet to be viewed is indicated by the number of white stripes.
- The number of frames currently or already viewed, is indicated by the number of red stripes.

To move on to the next screen, click the dart-button in the lower right corner of the screen.

You are here.

Three signs mark the last screen of a learning sequence:

1. the dotted line,
2. all bars are changed to red,
3. the back to the start bar.

Back to the start of a learning sequence resp. to the last furcation.

Spoken text and music

You will find two types of loudspeaker control-bars, which enables you to halt the speaker or the music at any time and to go back or to go forward again.

Videos

 When you click the film symbol in the right-hand column, you get onto a film projection frame and the video starts to run.

The video projection page

When you move the cursor into the video display area, a video control bar appears at the bottom of the image. With this control-bar, you can stop the video display or pause it; you can move backwards or forwards within the video. You can likewise regulate the volume.

At the end of a video sequence, click the red-orange button in the lower right corner of the screen, to return to the learning sequence.

The lexicon

For further information on persons and events or for more detailed explanations of technical terms and notions, we offer you a comprehensive lexicon, where you can look up keywords. You will find it on the left side of the grey stripe at the bottom of the frame.

When you open the lexicon by clicking the word "Lexicon", an index opens up, showing the letters of the alphabet on the left and a scrollable list of individual topics (in red type) entered under the corresponding letter of the alphabet. Clicking a specific topic opens the lexicon to show the article on that subject.

To move to another letter, simply click the desired letter in the left column.

To return to the learning sequence, you need only click the word "Back" (in the grey orientation column on the left side of the screen) and you will be transported back to where you left off.
